Integrated controls – the new safety switch CTP-Extended

With the new Extended version of the transponder-coded safety switch CTP with guard locking it is possible to integrate three controls and indicators into the switch cover. These make it possible to trigger control signals, e. g. emergency stop, request to enter and reset functionality directly at the safety switch. A separate housing for controls is no longer required. Illuminated pushbuttons, indicators or an emergency stop device can be integrated. In combination with a bolt system, the CTP-Extended represents a complete solenoid locking safeguarding solution for access doors including handle and end stop.

Like all safety switches from the CTP series, the CTP-Extended has a guard locking with guard lock monitoring and meets all the requirements of EN ISO 13849-1 and EN ISO 14119. The internally wired controls and the connection of the safety switch via an M23 plug connector reduce the wiring work during setup to a minimum. The very compact design and the robust plastic housing with metal head are ideal for industrial usage.
